NORTHERN IRELAND

A magical land of mythical giants, legendary landscapes and major history, including the birthplace of the mighty Titanic

Northern Ireland has undergone something of a renaissance over the past few years: it's a fantastic place to visit, offering a warm welcome, breathtaking scenery and vibrant cities – it's become a popular touring destination.

Just a short ferry ride across the sea from Cairnryan, or a rather longer one from Liverpool, will take you right into the centre of historic Belfast, with the Titanic attraction close at hand, or to Larne, from where the world-famous Giant's Causeway is easily accessible. And don't miss the spectacular scenery of the Mourne Mountains, and the region's many lively seaside towns.

Majestic mountains and mysterious lochs beckon outdoor enthusiasts, while city-lovers can explore a vast wealth of historic architecture

Scotland offers a tremendous diversity of landscape, from windswept islands in the west to the brooding lochs of the Highlands. Then there are the vibrant cities of Glasgow, Edinburgh and Aberdeen, all making for a great break.

This beautiful land is also well known for its National Parks; they include Loch Lomond & The Trossachs, as well as the mountains of the stunning Cairngorms. Those who love outdoor pursuits will be in their element here!

There's plenty to enjoy in the Borders, too, and for something a bit different, why not take a trip across the Firth of Clyde to the fabulous Isle of Arran?

NORTH-WEST ENGLAND

Lakes and fells offer adventures in stunning scenery, traditional seaside towns host great family entertainment, and there's iconic musical history, too

This region incorporates everything from towns that were the powerhouse of the Industrial Revolution, to quiet peaks and valleys in the Lake District. But there's much else to inspire, too, with quirky places such as Blackpool, and historic cities, including Lancaster. And that's before we've even begun to list the pleasures of the cultural mecca that is Liverpool.

There are plenty of local food specialities – Blackpool Rock, obviously, but also Cartmel sticky toffee pudding and even black pudding, originating in Bury. And which are better – Eccles cakes or Chorley cakes? You can decide!

DORSET

Explore the ancient geological history of the fascinating Jurassic Coast, then relax on the beach in splendid seaside resorts

One of Britain's prettiest counties is waiting to be explored, and what better way to do so than in a caravan? If you're a beach lover, head to the south of the region, where you'll find the sandy shores of Weymouth and Bournemouth; walking the shingle of Chesil Beach and the rest of the Jurassic Coast will also make for a wild and wonderful day out.

Dorset is famous for its picture-postcard villages, of course, and it's really easy to head off the beaten track to find them. Welcoming and pretty towns in the area, meanwhile, include Sherborne, Blandford and Gillingham.

With two glorious coastlines and two iconic National Parks, you won't be short of things to do in this gorgeous region

Devon offers so much to see and do, it's impossible to experience everything during one trip – which, of course, is a great excuse for you to keep revisiting. The rolling hills of Dartmoor are just one of the many attractions, as are the coastlines, north and south – they vary in feel, so be sure to visit both to choose your favourite. The north offers rugged inlets and crashing waves, while the south – the so-called English Riviera – is a gentler landscape.

SAVE MONEY ON TOUR!

Penny for your thoughts? These days, it will cost us more than that! Here are a few easy ways to keep down touring costs

CUT OUT AND KEEP GUIDE!

■ Travel on weekdays and, it goes without saying, avoid school and bank holidays if you can – off-peak campsite rates are often cheaper.

■ Watch your speed – as well as being safer, you'll save a good amount of fuel if you drive just a little slower.

■ Set the right tyre pressures. This will make your car and caravan safer, and reduce fuel consumption.

■ Use a campsite finder website, such as Pitchup, to find cheaper sites – many let you sort results by price, so you can bag a good deal.

■ Are you a pensioner, a student or a family group? Track down discounts and offers on local websites, or in magazines, libraries and arts centres.

■ Membership of either The Camping and Caravanning Club or the Caravan and Motorhome Club can make your touring cheaper, and if you seek out their CSs or CLs, you'll find they offer excellent value for money, especially on weekdays.

■ Give up those expensive frothy Frappuccinos. Instead, make up a pot of Moka coffee in your van (or instant if you prefer!).

■ It's stating the obvious, we know, but a packed lunch is going to save you £££s.

■ Shop like a local. Yes, it's good to have Hobnobs and Marmite on tour (although perhaps not together), but don't pay crazy prices for them overseas.

Instead, revel in shops and markets where you're sure to find excellent local products. Fromage, anyone?

■ We are all painfully aware that fuel prices are scarily high, so it makes sense to shop around. Try apps such as Petrolprices.com, which seeks out the best prices for fuel in your area. Every little helps!

■ If you're on site with electric hook-up, run as much as you can off electric rather than gas – consider a low-wattage electric grill.

■ Stay local. If you just want a quick break, save on fuel by booking a local campsite. Then you can explore all those bits of your locality you never got round to discovering.

■ Toll roads can be expensive, so use the AA or RAC route planners to avoid them (assuming it won't cost you more in fuel). Your trip might be slower, but it's all about the journey, right?

■ It's lovely to be spontaneous and go whenever you feel the call of the road, but a bit of planning can save cash. Think special offers, supermarket vouchers and competitions. Try myvouchercode.co.uk.

■ Take a look at CampingCard ACSI. A subscription is 17.95 euros and can save up to 60% per night at more than 3000 sites around Europe when you tour during the low season.

■ A shared bag of chips on the prom is as good an experience as eating at a fancy harbourside restaurant – cheaper, too!
